» Step onto Guana Island and you'll immediately feel at peace: Guana Island is a nature reserve. A long-term program has restored the abundant flora and fauna, including the red-legged tortoise and six roseate flamingos that reside in the pond. The resort's 16 whitewashed rooms and cottages cling to hilltops and are situated to maximize views of the sailboat-studded Caribbean and other Virgins. All produce is grown on the island (and even sung to) by gardener Dr. Liao. And if the soft sand beach that cups supremely swimmable White Bay, complete with a floating platform, is too, uh ... crowded (which is not likely since this private island holds a maximum of 36 guests), there are five other beaches from which to choose. guana.com
